Music

Heather Styka is a singer, songwriter and teacher from Chicago with strong family ties to Wisconsin's north woods. She writes intricate stories into her songs and weaves those songs together with more stories. Then she sings those songs with a voice that might make you think of Ella Fitzgerald or Billie Holiday – but she describes herself as a cross between Leonard Cohen and Patsy Cline. No matter what you call it, her sound is her own. Heather's songs and stories belong squarely in the folk and Americana traditions, but they're also gritty country and catchy pop. She turns it into a real good mix. Onstage she's energetic and intimate, quirky and funny. We all fell in love with Heather last year, and asked her to return as our Honorary Director. For more, go to heatherstyka.com

The Oh Boys! is a powerhouse trio from Chicago with tight harmonies and infectious enthusiasm, bringing vintage-inspired pop, rock, folk and doo-wop to life. They started in 2018 when they joined to recreate the music of Buddy Holly and the Crickets in the Chicago production of Buddy Holly: The Buddy Holly Story. 100 award-winning sold-out performances later, they stayed together and formed The Oh Boys!, choosing the name to honor the Buddy Holly song. Zachary Stevenson, originally from Vancouver, is an actor, musician and writer. He frequently portrays other musicians on stage, and the Victoria Times Colonist has called him “a dead ringer for dead singers” as he portrays Buddy Holly, Phil Ochs, Hank Williams and others. Shawn Whitley is an actor, musician, composer, multi-instrumentalist (guitar, bass, violin, piano, mandolin) and director. Kieran McCabe is an actor, musician and recording artist with extensive theatrical experience ranging from Shakespeare to the Buddy Holly Story. This is their first time in Shawano. The Oh Boys! is Heather Styka's Director's Choice.

Cedric Watson is a fiddler, vocalist, accordionist, songwriter and four-time Grammy nominee. He grew up in San Felipe, TX surrounded by blues, old soul, country and zydeco and made his way to Lafayette, LA. Cedric has a seemingly bottomless repertoire of songs at his fingertips as he plays everything from forgotten Creole melodies and obscure Dennis McGee reels to more modern Cajun and Zydeco songs.

He moves with ease between fiddle and accordion adding strong blues-inflected vocals. A prolific songwriter, his songs channel his diverse ancestry (African, French, Native American and Spanish). Cedric says, “We don't want to forget that one of the biggest contributions to our culture, music and heritage was made by the Native Americans. I find that the old Zydeco rhythms sound like a mix of African and Native American ceremonial rhythms. This mélange very possibly came about through the intermingling of the Native American population and the Maroons.” Cedric will be joined by Ethan Moody. This is Cedric's first time at the Shawano Folk Music Festival. We look forward to welcoming him. For more, go to <https://fliartists.com/artists/cedric-watson>

Anne Hills has one of the most beloved voices in folk music and she is Becky's 2025 "Director's Choice." If you've ever crossed paths with Anne, you know why. She keeps busy with live performances, solo and collaborative recording projects, theatrical work, overall artistry and benefit work. She creates some of the best music today. Anne is a generous collaborator and inventive songwriter. Her song "Follow That Road" has been called a certified folk classic since the late 1990's. Whether she is singing her own songs, the words of six-year-old Opal Whiteley, or her song settings of the Hoosier poet James Whitcomb Riley, she puts her whole heart and soul into the moment. She tours extensively, winning over audiences with her warm, lively and humorous performances. Tom Paxton says, "Anne Hills is such an exquisite singer that it's understandable that people might be swept up in the pure beauty of her voice and thereby overlook her writing. That would be a mistake. . . . She is quite simply one of my absolute favorite songwriters." More at annehills.com

Joe Crookston is a songwriter, singer, storyteller, teacher, guitarist, painter, banjo picker, fiddler, slide player, eco-village member and believer in all things possible. Coming from upstate New York, he's a force of nature! His songs are funny as hell – and so serious they'll take your breath away. Joe is magical, mystical and full of surprises – one minute he'll have you laughing in the aisles, singing along and then he'll stun you into silence. Songs and stories about Brooklyn in July, Oklahoma towns, rattlesnake tails, turbary thieves, Galway heather, meter maids and drunk roosters. Sadness, pain, hope, joy and nonsense – it's the stuff of life and Joe sings it all. He draws us in. Every time. He always leaves us wanting more and so we keep inviting him back. Paul Cebal Tomorrow Sound comes to us from Milwaukee, bringing a funky, lyrically charged racket that's explosive, yet intimate. Taking cues from the dance bands of western Louisiana (and his native Midwest), the streets (and 45 's) of New Orleans, touring African and Caribbean combos and the soul, funk & blues of his youth, Paul Cebal is a masterful synthesist of rhythmic culture. His time spent in his second home of New Orleans, as a musicologist in Florida and as a journeyman wanderer in Cuba is reflected in his musical worldview. Tomorrow Sound are an elite crew. Drummer Reggie Bordeaux, New Orleans native percussionist Mac Perkins, and bassist Mike Fredrickson, throw down some of the best dance grooves in the business. Multi-instrumentalist Bob Jennings implies a much larger ensemble with his multi-hued contributions on keys and reeds. At the core of it all is gifted songwriting. The company Paul keeps bears that out. Bonnie Raitt, Nick Lowe, Chris Smither, John Hiatt and Cesar Rosas are among his friends and admirers. Welcome Paul Cebal Tomorrow Sound to the festival. Door County Sound is the “unsung” artist we all depend on. Steve Ellmann and his crew make sure the music sounds just like the musicians want it. It's a tall order because every musician, instrument and stage has different challenges. Steve and his crew meet them all.

Stas Venglevski & Misha Litvin

have been Festival favorites since 2008, and their music is not to be missed. It's luminous, exquisite and a bit of fun, ranging from "Lara's Theme" through Russian folk tunes to Vivaldi and original compositions. Stas, a native of Moldova, is a composer and master of the Bayan, a Russian concert accordion. Stas lives in Milwaukee, performing and teaching. He tours extensively internationally and in the United States, at folk festivals and with symphony orchestras, including a recent stop at Carnegie Hall. Misha Litvin is a master mandolinist and master of the Domra, a Russian mandolin. Originally from Minsk, Belarus, he holds a masters degree in orchestral conducting and music education. Misha is a Professor at the Wisconsin Conservatory of Music, and a featured soloist with the Milwaukee Mandolin Orchestra. He has performed with chamber orchestras throughout the world. Band O' Barley has been playing rousing Irish music since 2018. Rick Metz (Highland bagpipes, smallpipes, Irish whistles, concertina, harmonium and melodion) and Eric Genereau (bodhran and harmonica) soon asked Jesse Kaftanski to join them, bringing his voice, rhythm, guitar and banjo to the mix. In time they were joined by Steve Shani (fiddle and cello), Issac Plyant (fiddle and guitar), Jake Hartman (mandolin and guitar) and Brian Arthur (bass). They perform in pubs and sample houses and their love of the music, culture and community is obvious when they play, honoring the traditions of those who came before. Traditional jigs, reels and ballads fill their shows, along with a generous dose of original music, flavored by the places they've lived. Band members come from across the country, from Texas to West Virginia. They've now settled here in Wisconsin. Welcome Band O' Barley to their first time on our Shawano stages. More at <https://www.facebook.com/p/Band-OBarley-100066530962308>

"Complete strangers can stand silent next to each other in an elevator and not even look each other in the eye. But at a concert, those same strangers could find themselves dancing and singing together like best friends. That's the power of music."

Pat Wiley is a seasoned songwriter and performer with a “rural, down home” flavor. He flows from guitar to fiddle to claw-hammer banjo as he sings his songs and tells his stories, playfully inviting his audience to pull up a chair and give a listen. He plays at clubs, coffeehouses, festivals and barn dances, where he sometimes serves as the dance caller. In 1979, Pat was a performer at the first Shawano Folk Music Festival. Since then he’s joined us on stage as a musician and an MC, doing both with humor and grace. We welcome him back. More at patwileymusic.com

Flip of the Coin started in 2005 as a Ceili band. They play Irish and old time music that’s made for dancing. John Wilson plays fiddle, tenor banjo and guitar. He’s joined by Tim Johnson (octave mandolin and five string banjo), Mike Oconnell (hammered dulcimer, penny whistle and vocals), John Casey (penny whistle, low Irish whistle and vocals) and Mike Casey (guitar and foot drum). They’ve got stories, songs, jokes, and possibly a light-footed tap dance to keep the banter going. Sunday afternoon they’ll play for the Festival Dance, with jigs, reels, squares, circles and waltzes. John Wilson will call the dances. Don’t know how to do the dances? They’ll teach you. This dance is for you, whether you’re 2 years old or 90. Join us Sunday afternoon for the Festival Dance, 1:30-3:00 in the Food Tent.

Turkeyfoot Road, based in New London, sings intricate harmonies with voices ranging from high tenor to descant soprano. They sing folk, Americana, bluegrass, pop and traditional tunes. Melissa Mulroy has 40 years’ experience singing. Frances Ranney has harmonized with Melissa since 1963. Amanda McHugh brought percussion in 2017. She also performs with Melissa. Nancy Hitz joined in 2019, bringing an extensive knowledge of traditional folk music. They play 6- and 12-string guitar, concert and baritone ukulele, banjolele and percussion. The group takes its name from the Kentucky road on which Melissa and Frances spent their teenage years. Jeff Pockat is a self-taught Gaelic harpist and storyteller from the Fox Valley. Playing a wire-strung Celtic harp, he performs both traditional and original tunes that soothe the mind, soul, body, and spirit. People who attended the early years of this festival may remember Jeff, with the sweet sounds of his harp wafting through the trees. Now, you may find him at festivals, concert stages, or playing for cancer and hospice patients. Help us welcome Jeff Pockat back to our Festival. More at jeffpockat.com

Green Apple Folk Music Society will be at the Pond View Glen stage Saturday, asking you to sing . . . because that's what they do. Green Apple

Folk Music Society is home to folk music enthusiasts in Northeast Wisconsin, sponsoring local, regional and national artists and offering local musicians chances to sing and play together. If you love making some of that music yourself, this may be what you're looking for. More at greenapplefolkmusic.org

The Shawano Stage is home to some of the Shawano area's finest musicians – and there are lots of guitar pickers and banjo pluckers, singers, songwriters and storytellers living and working here. Singer and songwriter Patty Schwenke has been busy gathering them together. They'll all be on the Pond View Glen stage on Sunday afternoon from 12:30 - 2:00.

Have We Said “Thank You?”

Can't say it enough. “Thank you” to donors, ticket buyers and advertisers - you make it possible to do the things that require cash. “Thank you” to volunteers who do all the things that require creativity, care, thought and labor. “Thank you” to the musicians, dancers sound techs and crafters who share the art the rest of us enjoy. “Thank you” to the audience who sings, laughs and dances through sun, rain and mosquitos - you're the reason for the whole thing.

Crafters, Artists and Writers

What's a folk music festival without creative people?

We're talking about artists and craftspeople, writers and massage therapists. The folks who learn their craft, practice their skills and find their inspiration wherever they can. They're the people who use their hands and hearts to create things that are beautiful and useful and sometimes just plain fun! Handmade instruments – jewelry – soaps – baskets – bowls – coffee mugs – clothing – garden decorations – all the things that help make our lives and our homes just a little bit more interesting.

And don't forget the stories! Musicians aren't the only people with stories. Stroll along the park paths as you listen to music. Take a look at the wares the artists and crafters are showing. Ask them how they make what they make. Take a moment to say hello or swap a story or two. You may hear some good ones! And you might get an early start on your Christmas shopping.

Musicians, dancers, artists and crafters. Different mediums. Same creative spirit.

"I want to thank anyone who spends part of their day creating. I don't care if it's a book, a film, a painting, a dance, a piece of theater, a piece of music. Anybody who spends part of their day sharing their experience with us. This world would be unlivable without art. Thank you for inspiring me."

Food Vendors

Music, Dance, Crafts, Friends and Good Food

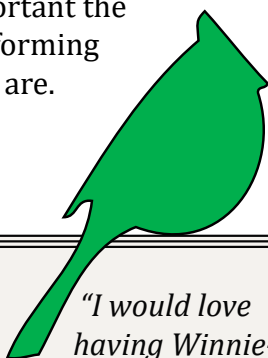

Yup, they go together. That's something we all know. Gather at the festival's food court. Whether you're looking for a meal or a quick snack, you'll find it here. The food vendors will include:

The Songbird Cafe serves food that's not your typical festival food. Wayne's soups, sandwiches, entrees and treats are made from scratch by the festival's own chef. Carefully selected ingredients include Nueske's ham, sourdough breads from Voyaguer Bake House, and wild blackberries that Wayne gathers himself and turns into sorbet. The Songbird Cafe only exists during festival weekend, and all proceeds benefit the festival.

Nuttin' But Butts has become a familiar sight in the festival's Food Court.

Ronni Schweyen's food truck returns with freshly made smoked pork butts, smoked Mac & cheese, smoked corn and delicious sides. She's been coming to serve up her food for the past few years, so we all know how good it is. She'll also serve on Saturday between the daytime programs and the Evening Concert.

The Shawano Schools Performing Arts Boosters will join us to serve juicy burgers, brats and hot dogs. It's their first time here at the festival. Come enjoy the food and support a good cause - because we all know how important the performing arts are.

"I would love having Winnie-the-Pooh stay here at the house. We could talk of food and what we were eating next. Maybe ponder that over a little morsel ... and then take a little nap and dream of desserts."

The 2025 Quilt - an Explosion of Color

It's a Festival tradition. Every year, a handmade quilt is made by a talented quilter and generously donated to the Festival. You have a chance to take it home. This year's quilt is being made by Jennifer Tagliapietra from Clintonville, WI. Jennifer made and donated last year's beautiful quilt and she's generously doing it again in 2025. She's been quilting for 6 years.

As we go to press, Jennifer is still working on the 2025 quilt, so this photo shows a work in progress. What a spectacular work it is! Jennifer told us it's based on the Luminary Quilt by Alison Glass/Jamie Swanson. She says she was going for northern lights colors. It'll be queen size and we would all like to see that night sky on our bed. Come to the Festival to see the finished quilt on the stage during evening concerts and at the Raffle Table during the day.

Thank you, Jennifer, for the hours of love that go into making this work of art!

Dancing at the Sweetheart Ball!

Our second Sweetheart Ball was supposed to be Valentine's Day weekend, with music by Frogwater and dance calling & fiddling by John Wilson. Wisconsin weather had other plans for us, so we re-scheduled the dance for April 5th at the Shawano Civic Center. Frogwater gave us some great dance music and John Wilson kept us moving. All who attended had a great time. Join us next year for Shawano Folk Music Festival's Sweetheart Ball.

Tod Roush Instruments

For many years, Tod Roush at his crafter booth was a familiar sight at the Festival. He sold the instruments he made. Every year, he generously donated one of them to the raffle and many of us went home with one of his dulcimers or kalimbas. Tod died way too soon, but his instruments live on. A few of Tod's instruments will be available this year at the Festival. Some are instruments he made. Others are vintage instruments from his private collection.

There's a vintage autoharp and a mandolin from his collection, and a Violin-Uke with the original 1959 bill of sale, donated by a community member. Among the instruments made by Tod, there's a hammered dulcimer, an hourglass lap dulcimer and another lap dulcimer made inside a violin case. We are fortunate that Tod lives on through his music and his instruments.

Thank you, Tod

Mielke Park is part of the Shawano County Park system. The 32-acre parcel was donated to Shawano County in 1971 by Dr. Mielke, a local dentist. The Mielke Family Foundation donated funds to build the Mielke Arts Center, a 250-seat black-box theater in the center of the park, with ground-breaking in 1975. There is also a small outdoor amphitheater close to the building. Mielke Park is heavily wooded with a few small lawn areas, a pond and walking paths winding through the park. The Mielke Arts Center is managed by the non-profit Shawano County Arts Council, which sponsors arts events like the Shawano Folk Music Festival, Box in the Wood Theatre Guild productions and the Shawano Arts and Crafts Fair. Plans are currently underway to improve both the park and the theater building with support from the Mielke Family Foundation and other funders. Since 1979 Mielke Park has been the perfect home for the Shawano Folk Music Festival. We're grateful.

Donations

Why give? Because the music needs you and your community needs you. The Festival committee is frugal as we build this weekend of music. We work to keep costs down and value high, and we try to keep the Festival tickets affordable for everyone. But tickets sales alone will never be enough. Musicians, sound, tents, printing, water, electricity, food, rubber bands - they all cost money. Without your generous support, this festival wouldn't happen. If you can, please give. All gifts - large and small - are important. In return, we'll keep the music going and make sure it remains accessible to everyone.
